PROGRAM BOOK

#VOICESOFTHEINNOCENT

Dear Friends,

We are thrilled to convene this community again – for the first time in person since 2019 – to hear from people directly impacted by wrongful convictions. Voices of the Innocent: Against All Odds is a special storytelling event centered around a theme that is so prevalent in this work: the challenges people face after being wrongfully convicted and what it takes to persevere in the face of that.

Every wrongfully convicted person faces tremendous odds on their journey to freedom. They face difficulty getting help with their case when there are so few resources available post conviction. They face fierce resistance to reexamining their case from prosecutors and the Courts. They face skepticism from parole boards and the media, making it extremely difficult to shift the public narrative. And even if they manage to succeed in obtaining freedom, they face the reality of navigating a new world without financial or other support from the government that wrongfully convicted them.

At the New England Innocence Project, we are dismayed but not daunted by these odds. We build a team around each wrongfully convicted person so that we can fight alongside them; having investigators, experts, and skilled litigators develop and present a true narrative about the case; and build the Exoneree Network's resources to support the needs of freed people and their families.

Together, with your support, wrongfully convicted people can beat the odds. So, please join us in this fight, support this tremendous work, and witness the stories and wisdom shared at this special event. We can't wait to experience it with you.

Sincerely,

Radha Natarajan

ABOUT THE NEW ENGLAND INNOCENCE PROJECT

The New England Innocence Project is a social justice non-profit that works to correct and prevent wrongful convictions and fights injustice within the criminal legal system for innocent people imprisoned for a crime they did not commit. Our team provides free forensic testing, investigation, experts, and an experienced legal team to exonerate the innocent and bring them home to their loved ones. We provide exoneree support through the peer-led Exoneree Network and use our expertise about wrongful convictions to provide education and advocate for legislative and judicial reforms to prevent future tragedies.

ABOUT THE EXONEREE NETWORK

The Exoneree Network is a peer-led initiative funded by the New England Innocence Project to support the practical, emotional, and spiritual reentry needs of exonerees and freed people as they work to rebuild their lives in freedom.

While every release and reunion after years of wrongful incarceration is joyous, it is not always easy. Since there is no existing infrastructure to assist an innocent person who spent decades in prison for a crime they did not commit, exonerees returning from long-term incarceration must rebuild from almost nothing.

The Exoneree Network fosters a welcoming community for freed people and helps to provide much needed support — from housing assistance and psychological support to phones and technological training, and more.

STORYTELLERS

We are grateful to our storytellers, all of whom have been directly impacted by the tragedy of wrongful convictions and who courageously share about the injustices they have suffered in order to prevent others from experiencing the same fate.

JABIR POPE

Jabir Pope was wrongfully convicted of a Boston murder and spent 38 years in prison. He was granted a new trial based on official misconduct including the failure of prosecutors to turn over exculpatory evidence. Jabir was freed on December 9, 2021 and had all charges against him dropped on October 24, 2022. Jabir has a daughter and grandson and loves music. He had his inaugural Moth storytelling debut at the 2023 Annual Innocence Network Conference.

NANCY WAGNER

Nancy Wagner (previously Nancy McGeoghean) was wrongfully convicted of the murder of her beloved daughter, Sarah. She spent 30 years in prison before she was able to demonstrate through scientific evidence from multiple experts that Sarah's death was a tragic accident. Nancy's case is similar to those of many other women wrongfully convicted of harming their children, cases where no crime actually occurred. Nancy was freed in 2020 and in 2023, she was granted a new trial and accepted an Alford plea, maintaining her innocence while getting closure in this nightmare. She loves dogs (she trained 10 for people with disabilities while still in prison) and her husband, Ray.

YESENIA VALENTIN

Yesenia Valentin is a community activist helping people realize their strength and overcome their struggles. She has been a single, determined mother since the age of 20. She has fought for her parents in both the medical and judicial systems and has been a resilient daughter who had been separated from her father because of his wrongful conviction. Having grown up in the streets of Boston, with homelessness and hunger pains plaguing black and brown communities, she is a devout believer in Jesus Christ and a fierce survivor. Yesenia's vision is to run for elected office where she can implement change for underserved and underrepresented communities.

ADDITIONAL SPEAKERS

DAVID HARRIS

David Harris retired in 2023 as managing director of the Charles Hamilton Houston Institute for Race and Justice, a position he held since 2006. David has been working to build up the Justflix project, which uses a train-the-trainer model for young people to use their cell phones to create short videos documenting racial and social justice, social service, and activism in their communities. He chairs the Mass Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights and co-leads a coalition, Who Governs the Governor's Council, to increase awareness of this elected body and its critical role in the administration of the legal system in the Commonwealth. He currently serves on the NEIP Board of Trustees.

DAVID SIEGEL

David M. Siegel is a Professor of Law at New England Law | Boston, where he teaches Comparative Criminal Procedure, Criminal Advocacy, Criminal Law, Criminal Procedure, Clinical Evidence and Evidence. His writing addresses the fairness and accuracy of the criminal process in the US and other countries, including forensic mental health issues and the ethical obligations of defense lawyers and prosecutors. A founding Trustee of NEIP, he currently chairs its Board of Trustees.

ARTIST SUPPORTERS

The New England Innocence Project thanks the following artists for sharing their talent and supporting the fight against wrongful convictions.

A REVOLUTIONARY PRESS

The Team

Cleopatra Redbird is an artist and activist born to the mountains of Vermont. They have dedicated their life to supporting others through art making and trauma-informed practices. Cleopatra is Co-Director of an art nonprofit that focuses on creating safe spaces for individual and communal healing from all levels of trauma. They are constantly learning and advocating for new ways forward.

John Vincent, a retired police officer, founded A Revolutionary Press in 2010 as a nonprofit letterpress print shop with a mission to print and promote Radical and Revolutionary Ideals.

A Revolutionary Press located in New Haven, Vermont prints and disseminates Radical & Revolutionary ideals to impel the People to Creatively Act on their Right and their Duty to alter or abolish the Present Form of Government and institute a New and more Humane Form of Self Government. We design and print the old fashioned way, one l-e-t-t-e-r at a time and whenever one of the hand or foot powered printing presses completes a full Revolution, some sort of Art Happens! The work of the Press is a collaborative effort of social justice artists who volunteer their time to design and print broadsides with messages of empowerment, peace and love. The Press donates all income from the sale of this work to other nonprofits that perform the front line work for nonviolence and social justice.

Once more, A Revolutionary Press is so very honored for this opportunity to collaborate with and to support the work of the Exonerée Network and New England Innocence Project.

ARC OF JUSTICE AWARD

“The arc of the moral universe is long, but it bends toward justice.”

Attributed to Martin Luther King, Jr., originally invoked by abolitionist Theodore Parker (Lexington, MA)

The ARC OF JUSTICE AWARD recognizes the special contributions of a community member who “bends the arc of the moral universe toward justice.” The principle behind the ARC OF JUSTICE AWARD is that the arc only bends toward justice when people pull it there; it does not happen on its own.

2023 is a year to acknowledge all that wrongfully convicted people must overcome to achieve their freedom and thrive in a new world. This year, in recognition of his detailed, thorough reporting that authentically captures the difficult and beautiful experiences of people directly impacted by a wrongful conviction, it is our distinct honor to present the 2023 ARC OF JUSTICE AWARD to:

ANDREW RYAN

Andrew Ryan is a reporter on The Boston Globe’s Quick Strike investigative team.

Over the last few years, Andrew Ryan’s research and reporting has captured the journeys of several people attempting to overturn their convictions and about the community of wrongfully convicted people who support each other in freedom. From the releases of James Lucien and Shaun Jenkins in 2021, to the exoneration of Barry Kamara in 2023, Andrew Ryan has been present for significant milestones in this community, even attending the 2022 Innocence Network Conference, along with exonerees and freed people. His reporting did not only cover individual cases, but he examined “the sins of Boston police past,” revealing that 80% of exonerations in Suffolk County in the last 3 decades have involved law enforcement misconduct.

Within this community, journalists can be seen with skepticism, having played a significant role in cementing biased, uncritical – and ultimately erroneous – narratives of people charged and convicted of crimes. Through careful, detailed reporting, Andrew Ryan gained the trust of even the most skeptical, including beloved exoneree Ray Champagne, who sadly passed away shortly after being interviewed about his work with Sean Ellis and Victor Rosario to create the Exoneree Network. Andrew Ryan’s writing of Ray’s obituary at such a difficult time was a salve for this community.

We are grateful for the honesty and integrity with which Andrew Ryan approaches his reporting and for shedding light on the injustices faced by wrongfully convicted people.

IT TAKES A COMMUNITY

VOICES OF THE INNOCENT: AGAINST ALL ODDS was made possible by so many in our community.

We are grateful to all the Staff and Trustees of the New England Innocence Project, without whom we would not be able to carry out our important mission.

We are especially thankful to Jordan Salvatoriello for making this event possible, using her unique skills to amplify these important stories of wrongful conviction.

There are many people with whom we partner, and we could not possibly list all of them here. We deeply appreciate everyone who contributes to the freedom and support of those wrongfully convicted, including pro bono partners, co-counsel, amici, investigators, social workers, experts, volunteers, journalists, and donors.

In closing, we want to thank the families and loved ones of those wrongfully convicted who are still waiting for freedom. Thank you for trusting us to be in this fight with you.
